Owing to his "heavy" duties the witness continued, he was unable to visit the tubercular hospital every day, but that he did not neglect his duty in this respect. The prisoners there are accorded every attention, he testified, and if they "need anything I don't know what it is." No statistics relating to his work were kept by him, he stated, but it was brought out that all deaths were recorded in Warden Smith's office.

Salary $100 Per Month.

In referring to his salary of $100 per month, Dr. Compton said that he had to spend $40 dollars of this each thirty days for automobile expense. In answer to a question asked by Judge Hammond, he testified that no prison journal or messaring describprison journal or magazines describ-ing other prisons and infirmaries were received in his department.

The witness denied that he had ever applied "high life" to a prisoner, except for medical purposes. He declared that bisulphide of sulphur was used very frequently and that he con-sidered it an excellent medicine for its purposes.

Judge Hammond asked why all the prisoners appeared so antagonistic to the physician and Dr. Compton re-plied that he did not consider this unusual.

"If you were in my place and stayed here for a while," he added, would become unpopular. When asked about J. Christie, whose Like Complaining Children.

NORTHERN SCIENTISTS CAMP IN OKEFENOKEE

waycross, Ga., June 13.—(Special.)—Another party of northern scientists today entered the Okefenokee swamp for the purpose of exploration and will spend the summer in doing research work for Cornell university.

The party was made up of Dr. and Mrs. A. H. Wright, of New York, and Dr. Francis Harper, of Cornell university. They will pitch their tents on Chessers Island and will remain in the heart of the swamp until September 1.

The continued stream of research parties which have been pouring into the swamp during the past year, has greatly encoraged local organizations in their efforts to have the national government set the swamp aside as a national park.

Annual Signature 13.—(Special.)—J. B. Farley, editor of The Gleaner and prominent in organized labor circles, charged with alleged connection with wholesale counterfeiting of pay checks of the Central of Georgia Railroad today demanded a prompt hearing. He will be given a hearing tomorrow. His bond was fixed at $10.000 and later reduced to $5.,000 which up to this afternoon he was not able to make. Officers say there will be, at least, ten charges of forgery against Farley. Other arrests are expected.

Explains Changes.

On the eve of the introduction of the revised bill, Representative Edmonds, republicant Pennsylvania, chairman of the sub-committee on merchant marine, explained some of the changes made in the first draft submitted to congress by the shipping board. Declaring that it had required the "best brains that can be collected in the drafting," Mr. Edmonds predicted that if passed it would mean "that fifty or sixty per cent of our foreign commerce will again be traveling the seas under the American flag."

Although recently reported as eliments of the Edward of the Pulpresed on the constitution of the constit ican flag."

Although recently reported as eliminated, the Edmonds sub-committee placed a new section in the bill providing that as nearly as practicable, one-half of the number of immigrants admitted to this country s'ould be transported on American ships. This section, however, would not take effect until a time fixed by the president, who also would be authorized to modify the regulation if found to be in conflict with treaties.

The action by the delegates was their first attack on the Harding administration, which it was indicated by the federation's executive council report, would be the brunt of other attacks during the two weeks' convention.

Interest among the delegates also was centered in the first movement for a contest of membership on the federation's council. Joseph A. Franklin, president of the Boilermakers' union, announced his candidacy of treasurer, opposing Daniel Tobin, president of the Teamsters' union, who is a candidate for residential.

Mr. Franklin's announcement came after a meeting of the chiefs of the eleven rail unions, which control al-most one-third of the convention vote and the candidacy of Mr. Franklin was regarded as a movement to give the rail organizations a representative on the council

MOTOR TRUCK GANG RAIDS DEAS' STORE

From the haul that was made from acco and confectionery supplies of D. W. Deas, at 764 Capitol avenue, during Monday night, it would appear that an effort was made by the burglars to move the entire stock of goods over night, according to city detectives Tuesday morning, following the re-port of the robbery. Many cartons of cigarettes of every kind, a large number of boxes of ci-gars of different brands, snuff, chewing gum, candy, etc., were taken by the thieves, who turned the store up-side down. It is believed they used a motor truck in making off with their Entrance was gained by forcing the lock on a door. A thorough inves-tigation by the detectives Tuesday morning revealed no clue that would lend any assistance in determining the identity of the robber.

Burglary of the residence of C. A. Tappan, on the Springdale road, was reported to the detectives Tuesday. This place was robbed Monday aftermoon between the hours of 2:30 and 5:30 o'clock, while members of the family were in town.

Another burglary was reported Tuesday in which tools were stolen from the property of the Massell Realty company, at Spring and Cain streets, upon which improvements are being erected.

LEGION COMEDY LYRIC TONIGHT PROMISES WELL

"Sittin' Pretty," a m. sical comedy billed at the Lyric theater Wednesday evening under the auspices of the Henry Thomas Ross post, No. 78, of the American Legion, is under the personal direction of Miss Juanita Vaughn, who plays the leading female role of the comedy as a wealthy French widow.

Miss Glennis Hancock has under her personal direction the entire musical program. Eugene McNeel, starring in the role of Sergeant Bob Druary, is the typical "hard-boiled" army sergeant who won universal admiration from all doughboys, while Morgan McNeel takes the part of Corporal Theodore Elliott.

No A. E. F. play could be comporal Theodore Elliott.

No A. E. F. play could be complete without the cast of a major and Pluto Lucious Knott, as Major Hanson, infantry, U. S. A., has proved his ability to handle such a difficult part. Miss Emmie Montgomery and Miss Frans Dobbs also are in the cast.

Among the wonlar musical number of the cast. Among the popular musical num-ters are "Lorraine," by Eugene Mc-Neel and men; "Cognac," by Johnnie Walker and doughboys "Knitting Song," by Emmie Montgomery and Franz Dobbs; "Crystal," by Clarice Everette and Pluto Lucius Knott. wasnington, June 13.—The admin-istration tariff bill was subjected to another national attack today in the renate by Senator Simmons, democrat, North Carolina, who declared the committee duty of 60 per cent ad valorem on reed and willow furni ture—which subsequently was ap-proved—was illustrative of the plan of the majority as outlined in the whole bill.

Senator Simmons argued that a 60 per cent duty could not be justified from a protection standpoint, but this was disputed by Chairman McCumber, of the finance committee, and Senator Townsend, republican, Michigan.

Activity of Worm May Boil Number

Constitution Bureau,
Raleigh Hotel.

Washington, June 13.—(By Constitution Leased Wire.)—Around a lowly worm, of the species "teredo," whose nefarious trade consists of undermining the basic structure of naval wharves, is built a story which today gives promise of embracing a number of things and becoming national in prominence.

It is this:
Senator King, democrat, of Utah, has started an offensive against those forces, which, he charges, are hent.

gives promise of embracing a number of things and becoming national in prominence.

It is this:
Senator King, democrat, of Utah, has started an offensive against those forces, which, he charges, are bent upon destroying the naval base at Mare island in San Francisco harbor, where a part of the scene is laid. He has served notice that any scheme contemplating the abandonment of the Mare island base in favor of the Alameda base, whose development as a naval base would cost in the neighborhood of $100,000,000, would not be tolerated.

When the naval appropriation bill passed in the house it carried an item of $2,800,000 for the Mare island navy yard in California, of which sum $750,000 was made immediately available. The appropriation was made after a bitter fight to have the Mare island yard abandoned, and the Alsmeda base improved. The charge was made at the time that real estate interests at Alameda were particularly interested in the plan.

Appropriation Cut. Appropriation Cut.

The furniture item furnished the only real fight of the day in which unusually good progress was made on the bill. Disposing of several remaining minor amendments in the metal schedule, the senate got through with the wood schedule, after deferring the fight over the proposal to retain shingles on the free list.

Then it went into the sugar schedule, but since the committee had not recommended any change in the house rates in that section, the big controversy over this will await completion of action on the remaining 1,700 odd committee amendments.

Senator Underwood, of Alabama, the democratic leader, gave notice when the wood schedule was taken up that at the proper time he would move to restore logs of fir, spruce, cedar and western hemlock to the free list.

Senator Underwood of Malabama, the democratic leader, gave notice when the wood schedule was taken up that at the proper time he would move to restore logs of fir, spruce, cedar and western hemlock to the free list.

Other Rates.

Aside from the 60 per cent duty on reed furniture, rates in the wood schedule approved included 15 cents per gross on clotures; 35 per cent ad valorem on house or cabuset furniture of wood, not specially provided for, and from 40 to 50 per cent on porch and window blinds, baskets, shades, and screens of bamboo wood, straw or yalm leaf.

More Details.

During house committee hearings, During house committee hearings, it is said, many expert witnesses testified that unless necessary appropriation was made for the Mare Island navy yard, permanent injury would result, due to some parasitic creature eating into the docks and destroying them—the lowly worm again. The money was appropriated by the house.

Referring to the Bremerton yards, Kelley said an appropriation was made a year ago for improvements there, and that the improvements were not yet begun. To grant more money to the Bremerton yards would be folly, he insisted.

he insisted.

Just how the item got into the naval appropriations bill in the senate is not proved as yet. The gossip is, however, that Poindexter called on Newever, that Poindexter called on New-berry as an expert witness because at one time Newberry was assistant sec-retary of the navy. It is related that Newberry responded by saying that Mare Island yard did not need that much money, and that $250,000 should to to Mare Island and $500,000 to Bremerton.

Poindexter's Trouble

Out in the state of Washington just now Poindexter is having trouble. His opponent is fighting him hard on the ground that he was once a progressive, but that he voted to seat Nev-Carl is about five feet tall, weigns sive, but that he voted to seat Newberry. His opponent is pointing out that Senator Jones, of Washington did not vote to seat Newberry, but that Senator Jones, of Washington did not vote to seat Newberry, but spoke against him, and the reports indicate that Poindexter has some cause for worry.

Representative Kelley, on the other land, is campaigning in Michigan for a seat in the senate. He is opposing Senator Charley Townsend, the man who went to Newberry's defense in the senate, and he is making the fight to have "Newberry's ousted from the state. Naturally, Newberry is supporting Townsend and opposing Kelley, and Kelley is none too friendly with Newberry.

In the event the Bremerton appropriation is approved, the naval appropriation bill will have to go to conference of the house and senate committees. Kelley will be a member of the conference committee, because he is chairman of the house subcommittee on naval appropriations. Kelley, therefore, will get the last whack at the bill, and will develop more campaign material for his fight on Newlerry and Townsend. Incidentally, Kelley, as the leader of the "little navy" fight in the house, will get ammunition to renew his war on that score. He is making a nart of his campaign on his work for reduced naval appropriations.

Several weeks ago, without warning or a word of explanation, gasoline prices began to ascend, going from 20 cents upward, by easy stages, to 29 cents a gallon, retail, the level reached in the latter part of May.

The last boost caused a slight in the senate-several es being made of course and in the department of justice; but nothing was done about it.

Now however it is being rured, supposedly on good authority, that still further revisions upward are to be made in gasoline quotations in the near future, the public being put on notice that the retail price probably will go to 36 llon by next July 1, despite the fact that there are unprecedented reserve supplies of oth crude oil and gasoline in the untry: and the senate has authored a thorough and searching investigation by its manufactures committee in collaboration with operatives of the department of

Just how much of the purported information coming out of the Near East from time to time is true and how much is false propaganda nobody outside of the zone of the alleged atrocities seems able to say; but the situation has become so grave as not only to justify an impartial international investigaion, but to make such an inquiry positive necessity.

Dr. Ward, until a short time ago head of the Near East Relief hospital at Harput, declared recently that "the Turks are planning the extermination of the Christian minority" within their governmental jurisdiction; and the Greek government flatly charged the officials of the Kemalist regime in Turkey with having deliberately instigated the alleged massacres and other atrocities with that end in view.

bits of New York Life

New York, June 13.—A midnight ride on a roaring subway express from Brooklyn bridge to the far fring Bronx—some say not flung far enough—gives a close up of the row upon row of fanfastic faces, shifty, shiftless and stoical. Types not seen by day seem to seep from the tube's cavernous bat-like shadows at night.

The subway provides its huskiest guards, fellows with undershot jaws and bulky shoulders, to take care of the midnight crowds. A chorine in white shoes sits knitting unmindful of the lurching car. At Fourteenth street a friend joins her.

To Regulate Driving Editor Constitution: The accidents to pedestrians and others from automobiles call to my mind certain laws in other states and make me wonder if we do not need something like them in Georgia. In Massachusetts one cannot own a car without a permit. Better still, one cannot drive a car without a chauffeur's license; and one cannot get it till he has attended a school of instruction and has run a car one hundred miles under the oversight of an instructor; and then if he proves to be a reckless driver and has a few accidents his license is revoked.

Stricter Laws Urged

It seems to me some such law in Georgia would help the cause quite a bit. We have parties driving cars who are too hazardous. There ought to be some way to make them slow down or quit driving a car at all. Then our laws are not stringent enough as to children's driving cars. Just the other day in a certain city a very small boy seated by his father and driving his father's car ran into a cow and broke her leg. How for-

Sooner or later a suffering public surely will rise up and demand that the present recklessness of many drivers shall cease. But must hun-dreds more be maimed for life or killed before that day comes?

Then again, parents, specially in cities, need to drill their children most diligently to be watchful and careful in crossing the street; and at all hazards they must not allow their children to play in the street. I could give incident after incident to inforce this idea. Even adults are sometimes so absorbed in thought that they force to be careful. By a word

Allen Schoen, widely known insurance man, in a brief address outlined the basis of fire insurance rates in cities whose population was more than 10,000. He demonstrated in points the methods used in arriving at the basis of rates. The plan is divided into five major considerations. This includes water facilities, fire equipment, construction of buildings, hazards and climatic conditions.

The excitement involving the men started when 10-year-old Bonnie Wright was taken into their machine and they drove of, it is alleged. When they failed to return promptly the father of the lad became alarmed and called in the officers. The constabulary met the party on Riverside road and a chase started which did not end until the officers fired several shots. The men then surrendered.

security from the boll weevil which had been heralded to them previous to the actual coming of the pestilence.

"The advent of the boll weevil," ays the report, "was a staggering says the report, "was a staggering blow to the farmers of Georgia. In spite of the efforts made to prepare them for its onslaught, the cry of 'wolf! wolf!' so frequenty heard and discounted, !ulled them into a false sense of security. Like all plagues which have afflicted humanity, the weevil struck suddenly and with devestating fury. The toll it took of our cotton crop last year was appalling.

"Coming as it did upon the heels "Coming as it did upon the heels of the tremendous financial losses and depression from which our people had suffered, it left them in a sort of coma, and so perplexed that they did not know what to do.

No Cotton Substitute.

"Those who concluded that they would limit cotton production began at once to seek for some crop which they could substitute therefor. Their search was disappointing, and this further complicated the situation Heroic efforts have been made by this institution and its field workers to exinstitution and its field workers to ex-plain to our farmers for some years that no crop could take the place of cotton, but that when its cultivation was minimized a considerable number of crops must be utilized in its place, that animal industry must be magnified and encouraged, and our whole policy of land cultivation and farm management reorganized.

"It is not surprising that our far-mers should have found such radical changes difficult of assimilation and institution in practice, and it is in institution in practice, and it is in-deed encouraging that under the cir-cumstances so large a measure of progress has already been achieved. It is quite certain that marked de-velopm nt along the lines of diversi-fied cropping will be evidenced very shortly, for the lesson, while bitter and costly, none the less proved to be the stimutes which was needed.

At the same time the dairy cow is coming into her own and the dairy business is winning a substantial place in the

"The poultry industry has taken on new life. In many communities it has been found that egg circles could be organized and a superior quality of organized and a superior quality of poultry produce shipped acceptably to distant markets. A considerable quantity of Georgia eggs has been marketed at profitable prices in New York. White eggs from the college poultry division won fourth place in the New Jersey egg contest, and brown eggs won second place in the Indiana contest. (Continued from Yesterday.) CHAPTER VI.

The District Attorney. Carrington preceded Marston to a room across the hall. Before a fire sat Helen Carrington, listening with an air of amiability to a man of singular appearance. He had the eyes cf a bully and a bully's voice-strident, rasping. He did not rise as they entered, or in the formatity of introduction. Toward Marston he instantly assumed the manner of a crossexaminer. "Out all night?"

'You appear well informed," Marston replied.

The district attorney seemed annoyed. "You went to Saleport?"

"Yes."

"What for?"

"The same reason thousands of pepole did: to see the fire."

"Well, that doesn't explain your staying out all night."

"Do I understand you require a full examination of my movements?"

Marston's air blended surprise with indifference.

Marston's air blended surprise with indifference.

Mr. Baumgarten snorted explosively, and rose abruptly. "Wasn't you walking with the woman the night she was killed?" he demanded.
"Do you refer to Mrs. Cutshaw?"
"I do. Wasn't you?" The district attorney scowled
"I was," assented Marston.
"And wasn't she flustered afterward?"
"I don't know."

Mr. Baumgarten became distinctly threatening. "You qu'arreled, didn't you?""

"I don't remember that we did."

Then Carlotta entered A bit pale but seeming thoroughly composed, she came slowly in and stood by Helen's chair, with one hand resting lightly on her shoulder.

"This is Mr. Baumgarten, the district attorney, Carlotta," said Helen, by way of explanation and introduction... "Mrs. Hamlin completes the household, Mr. Baumgarten."

"So you doubt my word!" Dr. Ben waited a full minute, or so it seemed, for Mr. Baumgarten's missing answer. Then he went on: "Didn't I keep my promise in the case of Schwartz."
With the word "Schwartz." the district attorney's high color suddenly left him. He shivered. His mouth opened like the mouth of a fish removed from water; and he was as silent.

"Do you remember Schwarts?" pressed Dr. Ben.

"Yes," gasped Mr. Baumgarten.

"Then don't forget him." When Dr. Ren went on his voice was mild again.

"There's a good deal for you to do in Saleport, Baumgarten As I promised you, I'll look after things here. If you will excuse me for a few minutes, Alfred, there are one or two matters I want to take up with the district attorney."

He already had Mr. Baumgarten by the elbow quietly pushing him toward the door.

With a hasty "Excuse me, please," Carlotta rose and went swiftly upstairs.

'I think I will go too " said Helen."

Carlotta rose and went swiftly upstairs.

I think I will go, too," said Helen, following the retreating figure with troubled eyes.

Carrington returned to the library. Left alone, Marston had hardly commenced a review of the day's developments when Dr. Ben canne briskly in. "All alone, I see," he said. "I'm rather glad of it. I am disturbed by something Baumgarten has just

"All alone, I see," he said. "I'm rather glad of it. I am disturbed by something Baumgarten has just told me. He says Mrs. Hamlin has a dress like the yellow bit I found in Mrs. Cutshaw's room. I hate to say it, but you know I regard that little piece of yellow as the only clew to the murderer so far found."

Marston clutched at a straw. "Didn't they tell you, the day after the murder, there was no dress like the yellow you found in the house?" "Helen did," Dr. Ben corrected him. "But I don't remember Mrs. Hamlin saying anything about it." "But what makes Baumgarten think she has a dress of this yellow stuff?" "Got it from one of the servants," said Dr. Ben. "He quizzed some of them before Alfred knew he was in the house. Now he has a notion you all combined to shield someone. And he's apt to turn nasty,"

"Can't you hold him a few days?" "Maybe. You saw I had a hold on him. Something I know about his bad behavior in a case. I'll do my best with him."

"Thanks," said Marston.

"But meantime it's up to us to show

'Thaven't seem Mrs. Marston yet."

You can't fool me, his challenging air seemed to convey.

"There is no Mrs. Marston," Marston offered the information.

"You say so. But she telephoned from this house to Saleport—this very atternoon."

"I think you are mistaken. Within two hours she telephoned. And I can tell you where to." He fumbled in his pockets for a slip of paper. "To No. 84 Schofield avenue, and that is the house of one James Parton. Now what do you say?"

"How does it happen you know so much shout what good on the source of the house of one does not not say the small game on the estate. Up hill and down dale he looked for her, keeping to a radius within which he thought she might wander. He had covered some miles when it occurred to him that it was time to turn back. "How does it happen you know so much about what goes on in my house??" Carrington cut in; he was obviously angry.

Mr. Baumgarten permitted himself a moment of complacent self-approval. "We're not such fools, back nere in the country. Of course, the telephone operator was instructed to take careful note of all calls from this house, just as soon as the murder was reported.

"Anyway," said Carrington decively," there is no Mrs. Marston in the house."

"Then somebody is using a false name," Mr. Baumgarten asserted. "We'll look into that later."

During this spelling whether whether the same wheth it occurred to him that it was time to turn back. It was an unfamiliar section, but he had a compass in his pocket, and knew the general direction of Oakhurst. With extreme care he took his bearings. Then he litted his eyes to a shock of surprise. On sudden impulse he advanced directly to the point that so challenged his interest, and parted the foliage. No enlight wander. Marston reached the house in time for luncheon. Carlotta did not appear, sending word from her room that she had a headache. After luncheon, Marston, in his restlessness, went for a spin in his automobile. He had gone a few miles when a woman, senning on a stile, engaged his attention. He was driving slowly and, as he passed it, seemed to him she was in some sort of trouble. But she did not speak, and he dalfied with the impulse to offer aid, if needed. Probably the fact that a turn of the road just ahead would hide her completely moved him to another look, a half minute or so later. She was facing him then, and raised her disengaged hand with a gesture of appeal. Turning his car into a little woodroad, in order that it might not block the highway, he ran back to where she stood.

Chicago, Ill. — "I recommend Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound for all prospective mothers. I suffered from weakness and faint spells and had to lie down twice a day for an hour or so before I could go on with my work. My cousin, who lives in Wisconsin, has used to your Vegetable Compound for over five years and she came to us for a visit and she recommended it to me, saying she would pay for the bottle if it did not help me. As the doctor's fist clenched suggestively, she added hastily:

Her gay laughter brought a smile to his grave face.

"Are you going to tell me?"
She shook he head, her eyes dancing with mischief.

The Other.

"You've been wonderfully kind," she said quickly. "I can't ever thank you. I was so frightened the first night I spent here in the desert country. Somebow finding you was just like finding a big brother. There is only one other man in the whole world whom I believe could equal you in tenderness and protection."

There was a moment's silence, then:

"Anate that is sakionable women. If you prefer your hosiery named after a less plebeian beverage call it champagne. It's all the same shade and as yet the word is in good usage.

"Most of us do that, child," he said quietly.

"You know?" asked Diana shyly. He nodded and took her hand in his warm clasp.

"Then to have you really help me, I should begin at the beginning and enderness and protection."
There was a moment's silence, then:

"Not your husband?" asked the doctor quietly, as though he almost dreaded hearing the reply.
"But how did you know—," began Diana.

Diana meets Lynn Johnston, an old acquaintance. They are inndvertantly left behind when the limited pulls out of a New Mexican town and are picked up by a dashing Spaniard, Dominguez, who, attracted by Diana's beauty, makes Johnston a prisoner and proposes marriage to Diana. She makes her escape, only to be rescued a second time by a stranger, who proves similarly undesirable. In an effort to escape his advances, she lenps from a moving wagon. She awakens in a strange room and discovers that she has been pulled through a fortnight's illness by Cynthia Borden, who stirs some vague recollection of a former meeing, and Dr. Maxwell Borden, her brother, who takes an unusual interest in his paient.

Diana Scents a Mystery.

In a week Diana was able to be taken out on the varanda, which overlooked a little garden filled with gay bright flowers, a veritable oasis, against whose gate the relentless desert bent in van. Wrapped comfortably in a kimono of Cynthia Borden's, she was carried out by the doctor himself and laid tenderly in a hammock which had been first filled with pillows.

"I loathe being a baby," she laughed, her lips inadvertently brushing the doctor's ear as he bent to lay her in her improvised nest. "You and your sis-ter are ruining me. I thought I was a pempered pet at home, but I've never been treated like this before,

The doctor laughed and tucked her wrap around her.
"You brought the first sunshine in-

"You brought the lirst sunsaine into our life in many a year."

"But you're such amazing people," protested Diana. "Think, I've been here several weeks and you haven't even asked my name or where I'm from or what I was doing with a broken head in a ditch early one morning. There aren't many people back east who would be so generous and real locking in environity."

"Do we question the rose that opens its lovely petals in our garden, or the nightingale that sings beneath our window in the moonlight?" smiled the doctor.

Diana made a little grimance.
"Don't—you remind me of Domin-

The doctor's straight brows knit-ted.

"Not Pedro Dominguez?" he said sharply.
Diana nodded gaily.
"Pedro, the dashing Spaniard, from whom I escaped the night you found me!"

"I sound like a terrible person, don't I?" she said, her voice coming muffled between her fingers. The touch of his hand on her shoulder brought her face up.
"You are yourself, dear child, a very wonderful little girl. Somewhere, somehow, you've had a rotten time of it. Will you consider that I am at your command to do anything I can to straighten things out for you."

Tom was pitching a hard game in Cincinnati one day, when late in the battle he landed on the old onion and sent it high up and far away over the left field fence, which in those days was considerable of a swat. He tore around the bases at top speed in spite of the yells of his fellows to slow up. He hit the plate with the crowd cheering wildly, and, turning toward first, he put on more speed and circled the bases again. But when Hanlon went into the ring with Red and out-fought him for five rounds and then boxed with him in the last five, on account of his condition, or rather lack of it, the fans around this enterprising little village began to scratch their heads, and looking for some one for Hanlon to fight with there again. They liked his style and then wanted more of it.

Good Records.

The Georgia Military Academy, located at College Park isn't going to let the loss of a coach of Jesse Burbage's calibre stand in the way of continued athletic success at the stronghold of the cadets.

After searching for weeks for a mentor capable of filling Burbage's shoes, Colonel Woodward and his associates have signed a man who is already a big figure in southern prep athletic circles and who is destined for even greater prominence if he ever elects to accept college offers.

He is Wiley Wright, of Duval high school (Jacksonville), who has gained national recognition through the splendid records carved by the teams he moulded and directed at Duval. Weight's teams have won undisputed Florida championships in practically every line of sportdom and most of the credit is given him by Jacksonville sporting writers for the great success Duval has enjoyed in recent years.

Two Americans abroad, one in Paris, the other in Vienna, made fortunes in horse racing before the Vienna police scented their trail. The man in Vienna would bet for heavy stakes and horses racing in Paris about ten mainutes after the race had been run. The unsuspecting bookmaker, believing that the only means of communication obstween Paris and Vienna, namely telegraphy, took at least four hours, accepted the bets, until the American's consistent winnings led him to motify the police. It was then discovered that the man in Paris was a wireless operator and had been notifying his teammate of the results of the Paris races by radio.

K. OF ST. P. TO GIVE DANCE ON THURSDAY

An unusually versatile and interesting program has been arranged to take place at Harris Street Presbyterian church Wednesday night at 7:45, the occasion being Flag Day celebration, according to announcement of Iter. Roy T. Brumbaugh, pastor.

The program includes a recitation, by Harold Arwood; story of Flag Day, by Miss Edua Gimbruch, and "Evolution of the Flag," by E. J. Cooledge.

The Daughters of 1812, who were responsible for the observance of Flag day in Georgia, are especially invited to attend, as well as the general public.

The Knights of St. Philip will entertain with an informal dance on Thursday evening at their club rooms, 116 East Hunter street, according to A. E. Constantine, chairman of the entertainment.

Dancing will start promptly at 9 p. m. and continue until 12. Music will be furnished by Philip Schoenick's orchestra.

The entertainment committee has arranged a very interesting program for the evening.

These figures as to exports and imports for May as announced today by the department of commerce show that exports last month compared with $380,000,000 in May 1921, and imports compared with $205,000,000 for the same month a year ago.

For the eleven months ended with May, exports aggregated $3,437,000,000, while imports for the eleven-month period aggregated $2,349,000,000 compared with $8,460,000,000 during the corresponding months of 1921.

Department officials emphasized that the lower values of imports and exports as portrayed by the figures did not represent corresponding declines in volume of trade but were to a great extent due to the fall in prices.

Except for a moderate initial setback, the wheat market throughout the day displayed sufficient strength to keep above yesterday's final quotations. The fact that the calling of margins sent out last night caused no extensive new forced selling, inspired more confidence among traders, and besides the Liverpool market had undergone less of a fall than was expressed in view of the tumble yesterday in American values.

Falling off in country offerings of wheat helped revive courage of buyers, and fuere were advices that Italy was continuing to purchase.

COTTON MAKES SHARP RALLY AFTER DISASTROUS START

Liverpool Report Causes Gotham to Turn Firmer; Traders Ignore Weather

New York, June 13.—(By Associated Press.)—Further declines during today's early trading were followed by sharp rallies in the cotton market today. October contracts sold up from 21.32 to 21.92 and closed barely steady, but showed net advances of 24 to 28 points.

The market opened barely steady at a decline of 10 to 17 points under overnight selling orders brought in by the break of yesterday and favorable early weather news. The pressure continued until active months showed net losses of some 16 to 19 points shortly after the call with July selling at 21.45 and December 21.05. Offerings then call with July selling at 21.45 and December 21.05. Offerings there seemed to become somewhat smaller, and the market turned firmer on the strong showing of Liverpool, buying by brokers with Liverpool and New Orleans connections, reports of a good trade demand and covering by recent sellers.

The favorable weather map and forecast for continued good weather failed to do anything more than cause reactions of a few points from the best and the highest prices were reached in the afternoon when July sold at 21.99 and December at 21.66, with the market showing net advances of 86 to 43 points.

At New Orleans, June 13.—Reactions in the early trading in cotton to-day were not prolonged, aggressive buying appearing as the market fell and during the great part of the session prices were higher than yesterday's close. Highest prices came late in the day when July stood at 22.05 and the list was at net advances of 45 to 47 points. The close was at net gains on the day of 33 to 39 points, July closing at 21.93.

Early reaction amounted to 16 to 18 points, compared with yesterday's final price, July sinking to 21.44 and was the result of reports of hot and dry weather over the greater part of the cotton region. For a while selling was rather general, but the refusal of the Liverpool market to meet the decline, cables from Liverpool saying that spinners were calling cotton, cables from Manchester reporting a better demand for goods and a bullish mid-month report—on condition from a private bureau in the eastern belt placed the condition of the crop at 69.2 per cent of normal against 67.9 at the end of May, incleased the whole complexion of the market.

According to reports received by local brokers a private bureau in the eastern belt placed the condition of the crop at 69.2 per cent of normal against 67.9 at the end of May, incleased the whole complexion of the market.

According to reports received by local brokers a private bureau in the eastern belt placed the condition of the session appeared to be due to expectations of unfavorable weekly crop reports from the government tomorrow morning.

New York, June 13.—(Special.)—With strong buyers absorbing offerings of cotton in the futures markets and southern advices showing good demand for cotton of the new crop up to January delivery, attention is turned more from the weather than has been the case for some little time. The weather is decidedly more favorable for the crop and reports from western sections indicate improvement but also carry fresh complaints of weevil damage. However, only a short period of favorable weether not righted the delay from which the crop will saffer throughout this season. Overnight selling orders caused the break early this morning but with this pressure out of the way strength was displayed in varying degrees throughout the day with final quotations only a few points away from the best. Berluning Wednesday, the weather bureau will issue its weekly report at 10 a. m. (Enstern standard time), rather than 11 olclock as heretofore. Stronger Tone Is Registered, But Recovery Only Moderate - Prices Unsettled at Opening.

New York, June 13 .- The stock market today made general but only market today made general but only moderate recoveries from the preceding day's severe depression. In a few noteworthy instances, chiefly rails, the rebound carried prices close to last week's final quotations.

Prices were extremely unsettled in the first hour, that period witnessing a further extensive weeding out of margin or speculative holding at additional declines of 1 to 3 points. Thereafter the tone was more stable on a marked reduction of operations. Altogether the course of the market seemed to justify the opinion prevalent in many quarters that the recent liquidation had created stronger technical conditions. Cotton Letter,
New York, June 13.—(Special.)—Regardless of clear weather over the belt this morning the market advanced on continued favorable reports of good spot activity throughout the south. In addition to this, there is the danger of boll weevil damage during July and August. It seems there is very little selling power in the market owing to these factors. We feel, however, that if the weather continues clear that it will cause the market to ease off a triffe but owing to the diminishing supply of cotton and prospects for a moderate crop, we nical conditions. Stock exchange officials refused to discuss reports dealing with that in-stitution's latest policy of conserva-tism. It is understood, however, that the exchange has the co-operation of the banks in its efforts to gradually eliminate reckless speculation,

Oils, steels, motors and the better grade of rails reflected substantial support in the last half of the ses-sion, some of the equipments, ship-pings, textiles and chemicals also pings, textiles and chemicals also sharing in the stronger tone.

Net gains of 1 to 4 points were scored by Mexican Petroleum, General Asphalt, Sinclair, United States, Crucible and Republic Steels, Studebaker and Maxwell "A" and "B" issues, Baldwin and Lima Locomotives, American Sugar, Corn Products, Davison Chemical, Reading, Southern Pacific and New Central, Sales amounted to 1,300,000 shares.

Yesterday's low rate of 23-4 per Block Letter.

The support we expected to find was behind the market all morning, although, with the possible exception of Sinclair, there was no evidence of a resumption of any aggressive buying. It was as if buying interests were content to steady the market, and to convey reassurance in the general situation. Considerable outside buying also made its appearance. It is said that there were an unusually large number of selling orders "at the market" yester-terday, representing sales by holders of long stock who, frightened by the signs of perceptible weakness, made haste to sell in order to save part of their profits. Naturally, this large number of market orders hastened the decline. There is somewhat more confidence in buying side because the overnight news did not reveal any drastically unfavorable developments which might have been the hidden cause for the selling. We think that it is somewhat too early to say that the period of irregularity is at an end, but certainly the market is in a healther position than it was at this time last week.—Doremus, Daniel & Co. Yesterday's low rate of 23-4 per cent for call loans was not repeated, the quotation opening and holding at 3 per cent until the final half hour when 31-2 per cent was demanded. This slight stiffening was regarded as natural, in view of tomorrow's heavy withdrawals of government deposits to meet interest navments maturing withdrawals of government deposits to meet interest payments maturing the middle of the month.

Sharp reactions occurred throughout the foreign exchange list, sterling again reacting 21-2 cents to 4.46 1.2 for demand bills, with declines of 6 to 12 points in allied rates and 3 to almost 10 points in neutrals. Evidence of the more serious economic strain in central Europe was found in the acute weakness of Austrian remittance that developed following the suspension of operations on the Vienna stock exchange.

DUBLIN COTTON FIELD IS LOADED WITH BOLLS

Dublin. June 13.—(Special.)—A 25-acre cotton field near the city limits is loaded with full grown cotton bolls. The bolls are much earlier than usual and the yield from the field i. expected to be heavy. The farm is owned and operated by John W. Pope, a merchant of East Dub-

Cotton Seed Oil.

New York, June 18.—Cotton seed oil de-clined 4 to 9 points early under scattered liquidation, but firmed up later on cover-ing of shorts and commission house buying on the late turn in lard and cotton. Final bids showed set gains of 3 to 6 points. Sales, 12,000 barrels. Prime crude, nominal; prime summer yellow, spot, 11.40; July, 11.38; September, 11.49; December, 9.45, all bid.

A further index, perhaps, of the depression's toll is revealed in the fact that in 1920 the percentage of the total net income represented by joint returns of husbands and wives with

Shipment Are 30 Millions Off; Wall Street Active

BY R. L. BARNUM.

New York, June 13.—Following yesterday's break, which carried active industrial shares down from 3 to 15 points below the high prices for the year, there was an irregular opening this morning and then a sharp recovery on short covering after which the market grew quiet. Compared with the low prices of last August, industrial stocks on the whole had an advance of 32 points. The best judges of the market here expect one-third of this advance to be lost before healthy conditions are restored. There has already been a decline of 5 points on the

More calls for margins were sent out after the close yesterday than for any time since the long decline in the stock market culminated last August. The action of the market this morning indicated that the calls for margins were well met. However, the feeling is that weak account will be liquidated before the upward movement is resumed.

Foreign trade figures for the month of May were given out at Washington today. Imports were $254,000,000 against $217,000,000 for April, and $204,000,000 for May of last year. Exports were $308,000,000 against $321,000,000 for April, and $329,000,000 for May of 1922.

For the eleven months imports were $2,348,000,000, against $3,468,000,000 to the corresponding period of 1921, with exports $3,436,000,000 contrasted $6,179,000,000. Standard's Prospects

Washington, June 13.—The business depression beginning in 1919 took its first toll from the individuals in this country earning $1,000,000 a year or over, it is now disclosed by the bureau of internal revenue.

A preliminary survey of personal income statistics for 1920, just completed by the bureau, discloses that this unique class has been cut from 65 in 1919 to 33 in 1920, and the slack has been taken up largely by the wage earner who rates position in the $1,000 to $3,000 class.

Although no statistics of the high costs of living accompany the survey to show what became of the million-

American woolen announces another price advance, the third increase in selling prices since the fall line was opened last February. This looks like the company which earned $8.02 a share for its common stock during the calendar year 1921, against $6.44 for 1920, is going to make a good showing

A comparison of returns for these two years—the latest available for income tax statistics—reveals a consistent practice of "taking it out on the fellow below."

Despite these earmarks of business depression, the total amount of net income reported by these returns was $23,735,629,183. The tax (normal and surtax) amounted to $1,075,053,686. As compared with 1919, these figures show a growth of 1,927,194 in the number of returns filed and an increase in the total net income reported amounting to $3,876,137,731, but a decrease of $194,576,418 in the total tax.

The marked change, however, may

"Three Live Ghosts."

Three Live Ghosts."

There is nothing ghostly about the "Three Live Ghosts" at the Forsyth this week. Cockney, an American, and "Spoofy," who, all officially reported dead, are unable, for various reasons, to establish their identity, and whose consequent adventure provide three acts of thrills and laughter. "Spoofy's" habit of acquiring anything he can lay his hands on, from nutmeg graters to diamonds, results in a series of situations of comic revelation and continuous surprise, which makes this comedy the big laughing success of the season.

(At Loew's Grand.)
Today and tonight, last opportunities are offered for seeing at Loew's Grand theater Little Miriam Battista, the wonderful child star of stage and screen, who is making a personal appearance at that theater. Whilm is an unusually talented child and has made thousands of new friends by her visit to Atlanta. The vaudeville bill being offered in five acts of splendid entertainment. Browning and Davis, two blackface comedians, have a clever line of chatter and some song paradies that are making a decided hit with Grand audiences. Jimmy Shea and Claire Carroll are also proving popular with their harmony songs and mianologue. The balance of the bill includes Les Arados, an eccentric clown acrobatic act, the El Roy sisters in songs, dances and selection or the steel string guitar, and Da Nyle, Don and Eeverett, an educated dog number. SMALL HOUSE ENJOYS "OH, WHAT A NIGHT!"

The Variety Players again scored a hit with their comedy "Oh! What a Night!" The audience was small but the performers were on their mettle and all acquitted themselves favorably.

Myrtis Embry in the part of Mrs. Donovan was easily the evening's star, Mildred Head, as May Campbell, the school teacher, was a close second. Harold Van Buren, author, director and star of "Of! What a Night!" was almost perfect in his interpretation of the lovable old Father O'Neil, while William Lyon made an excellent background for the dramatic scenes.
